Thankful for Reconciliation

As we celebrated Thanksgiving this past week, it's easy to start thinking about all the things we have to be thankful for. We think about our families, our friends, the food on our tables, and the many ways God has blessed us. But as we make our lists and count our blessings, I wonder how often we stop to appreciate one of the greatest gifts we've ever been given: a restored relationship with God.

Sin created a separation between us and the God who created us. We had walked away, and there was nothing we could do on our own to repair what had been broken. But God didn't leave us there. He made the first move. Through Jesus, He opened the way for us to come home.

Paul reminds us in 2 Corinthians 5:18, "All this is from God, who through Christ reconciled us to himself." Think about that! The God we had turned away from was the very One who made a way for us to be brought back. Through the cross, Jesus didn't just pay our debt; He restored our relationship with the Father.

And God offers us more than a second chance. Romans 8:15 reminds us that we have received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry, "Abba! Father!" We aren't simply forgiven strangers standing at a distance. Through Jesus, we are welcomed into God's family. We have a Father, a place, and a relationship that has been restored.

So, this Thanksgiving, as we give thanks for the many blessings God has placed in our lives, let's not overlook the greatest one. We have been brought near to God. We have been welcomed home. And because of the cross, we have a relationship with our Father that will last forever.

What could possibly be more worth giving thanks for than that?

Harold Eggar—Minister
